IF YOU ARE SICK ST. LOUIS TERMINALS PRESENT BIG PROBLEM

Railroad Men Say Opening of Soutwest Demands Increased Facilities.

CITY'S GROWTH REMARKABLE.

Trade for This Center to Be as Great as That From Northwest for Chicago-Accountants to Meet.

The remarkable commercial growth of St. Louis since the announcement of the World's Pair has made the provision of adequate terminal facilities at St. Louis the hardest problem of the kind that local railroad managers have nad to deal with for many years. At the meeting of the executives of the railroads boiding membership in the Terminal Association of St. Louis at the Union Station Saturday, it was the unanimous opinion that it would take many millions of dollars, hindreds of acres of property and collars, hundreds of acres of prepetty and miles on miles of steel to meet the terminal demand of St. Louis

"The mest forturate thing for St. Louis aril for the railroads entering the city that was even done," said the president of one of the leading great Eastern railroad systems, "was the postponing of the World's Fair. If that acrien had not been taken, I am sure St. Louis would have suffered terminal disadvantages that would have suffered terminal disadvantages that would have surfered terminal disadvantages that would have service possible, and an incadentable damage to the Fair.

"The enormous growth of St. Louis is one of the great surfrises of the times in railroad circles, although it was expected that the opening of the rich country of the Southwest would increase business very materially. Without the extra year, it would have been impossible to any desired extent to better conditions. As it is, it will require every day to carry out the improvements decided upon, and we have found it necessary to go still deeper into the matter. The result will be the most extensive plans ever made to keep pace with the city's growth. It is our purpose to keep at it, and so fully look after every detail that the growth of the next twenty years can be met at once.

"I expect to see an increase in population, in every line of business, in fact in every direction on account of the new Southwest, as great as that of Chicago en the opening of the Northwest.

"Where my own road had two trains in and out of St. Louis a few years ago, we now have five. I am convinced that it will be fleeesary to put on more. And that is speaking only of the passenger end of the business.

"We must have greater tunnel facilities, an extrastive system of absence of wiles."

be necessary to put on more. And that is speaking only of the passenger end of the business.

"We must have greater tunnel facilities an extrasive system of elevated rails, and personally it is my opinion that St. Louis needs another bridge."

The plans acted upon at the Saturday meeting are to meet immediate needs. Immediately upon getting the new work under way, it is the stated purpose to put additional committees at work on still further plans as cluborate as those now rariflet. One official of the Terminal Association is authority for the statement that if the lines comprising the membership of the association should divide into separate groups for the maintenance of independent terminals, we should still have the bridge arbitrary. The extra charge might not be known by that name, yet the charge would be there—included in the freight tariffs.

"The Terminal is making a less charge on the arbitrary basis than the terminal companies of any other city; at least, that is my belief," stated General Manager Mechesney. The arbitrary pays for the maintenance of the bridge, and the surplus carnings of the Terminal sil go to the maintenance of the system, and for provision of greater facilities. If you will ask these railroads holding membership, you will find out that they receive nothing from the terminal charges."

On the other hand, it is generally felt among shippers that competition in terminal facilities would do away with the arbitrary. That question has been before St. Louis for years. And the outlook now is that many more years will not see a change. Some efforts for relief are talked of, but the railroads say the arbitrary is here to stay, either openly or included in freight charges.

ANN ARBOR TRAFFIC TROUBLES. Wabash's New Line Has Traffic Differences With Northwestern

It is reported that trouble exists between the managements of the Ann Arbor and the Northwestern and St. Paul, which has resulted in severing traffic relations with the Ann Arbor.

Regarding the difference. Third Vice President McCullough of the Northwestern is reported as saying:
"The Ann Arbor, operating car ferries between Frankfort, Mich., and Manitowec. Kewaunee and other points on the west shore of Lake Michigan, has had a misunderstanding with the Northwestern, which has resulted in the cancellation of all arrangements for the handling of freight in connection with the car ferry lines of the Ann Arbor, All traffic arrangements nave been discontinued."

The Aon Arbor, it is stated, claims relations were severed because that company refused to follow the St. Paul and Northwestern in a raise of rates from Menominer, Mich. Northwestern and St. Paul, which has re-

PATRICK CROTTY BEATEN TO DEATH,

Heater at Iron Foundry Robbed, Skull Crushed and the Body Thrown Into Dead Creek.

Patrick Crofty, 30 years old, a heater, employed at the Republic fron and Steel Works, and living with his widowed mother, Mrs. Kate Crotty, at No. 500 Piggott avenue. East St. Louis, was found dead at 10 o'clock yesterday morning on the bank of Dead Creek, just below Rush City. He was lying down in a pool of blood. His skull was crushed and his face was beaten into a pulp.

Robbery is supposed to have been the motive, and to hide the crime the highway-men cast the unconscious man into the creek. from which he crawled only to dis-Crotty is well known among the rolling-mill men of East St. Louis, He was an exellent workman. sellent workman. Saturday evening he is said to have drawn 500 for his week's work, but when his clothing was searched after he was found dead there was not a cent in his pockets. The last seen of Croity alive was in a saleon in Rush city about I a, m. The theory is that the murder was committed shortly afterwards, although the spot where he was found is in an out-of-the-way place and half a mile from the saleon where he was fast seen.

It is believed from the information in hand that Croity either accompanied two or more men to the seene of the crime or that he was taken there forcibly. On the bank of the creek are marks of a struggle, which was evidently a hard one, and lasted for everal minutes. It is believed that it was in this struggle that Croity was so terribly injured. He is a man of small stature but of remarkable physique, and it is thought that at least two men assaulted him. From the nature of the injuries, a dunt instrument was used. At the point where the skull was crushed the skin is not even abraded. There is a sligh, wound in his forehead and chin, and his eyes and ilps were swollen and greatly enlarged, yet did not show any sign of a sharp istrament. He was not injured about the body. After the murderers believed Crotty to be dead they cast his body into Dead Creek. The creek is not yery deep at this point. It is not thought probable that the murderers walted after this, for a few yards down the shore are the marks made by Crotty's fingers in the sandy clay bank for a hold to drag himself out of the water, which had the effect of restoring consciousness. The marks in the mud showed that Crotty dragged himself on his hands and knees about fifteen feet from the water. Here is sank on his face, probably from exhaustion, and died.

John Robinson, Marshal of Rush Chy, was notified of the finding of the body shortly after 90 a. m. He communicated at once with the East St. Louls authorities, and Renner's morgue, where it was identified shortly afterward.

DROWNED IN A CISTERN.

Aged Christian Huesemann's Body Found Floating in the Water. Christian Huesemann, SI years old, of N.

Hill St. Louis avenue. East St. Louis was drowned by falling into a cistern in the gran of his home yesterday morning. It is believed that, while looking into the cistern, he tost his balance.

Mr. Huesemann was one of the oldest citzens of East St. Louis. He lived with his wife, and their little home was bright and happy. The old folks enjoyed their quiet life, and one of the hobbies of the old man was to work in a small garden at his nome. It was also his habit to peer over the edge of the cistern into the depths of the water below. Yesterday morning he went into his gar-

Yesterday morning he went into his garden as usual, leaving his wife to attend to the housenoid duties. Missing him about an hour later, Mrs. Huesemann went into the garden and called. She received no answer and happened to walk toward the cistern. It was open and she looked down into it. She saw a black object floating on the water. She called for help and neighbors hurriedly rescued the body of the old man from the well. He had beed dead some aim, however. His body was removed to Benne-Brichler's morgue, where Deputy Corner George W. Brichler held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of accidental drowning.

The Burlington, with its branches, extends through the greatest coal fields of the West, and is capsible of supplying the Hill roads and the whole Northwest with coal, and making these lines independent of the Eastern mines and railroads.

President Hill, though he is silent on the subject, has been credited with looking on the coal-carrying capacity of the Burlington as one of the principal reasons for merging it with the Northern lines.

The Burlington is now double-tracking much of its system and making extensive betterments all along the line.

WALL STREET HAD AN EXCITING WEEK

From Previous Reaction, but Speculation Was Curtailed.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, May 25.-The stock market of the week presented little of interest and nothing of novelty. Prices made a quitgeneral recovery from the reactions of the previous interval of trading, but speculative activity was curtailed and Wall street, at the last, presented many of the characteristles of a midsummer market. Upon the part of all persons, except perhaps the pool and clique operators and the Western boom-ers, the course of speculation is admittedly the very best thing which could have happened. The time is one of normal doubt and uncertainty.

Aside from the coal strike situation, the developments of the week were of a satis-factory nature. They included a relaxation of money rates and the further strengthen-ing of bank resources, the receipt of rail-way traffic returns, which showed steady and well-maintained increases over the high level of the preceding year; crop and weather news, which, though somewhat mixed, was in the main favorable. In the near future heavy receipts of Klon-dike, Alaska and British Columbian gold may be expected, and after July 1 the re-peal of the war revenue measures will speedily work to the relief of the money position.

Coal-Strike Situation. The critical test of the anthracite coal strike has not yet come, and it appears likely that it will be deferred until the time when the operators will be compelled to render their decision on the demands made by the United Coal Workers in relation to VETERANS AT MEMORIAL SERVICE. Wall street was manimous, at the time of the general railroad reorganizations which followed the collapses of the early mineties, that the worst possible form of financing and undertaking was in bonds by which contingent charges were transformed into fixed obligations.

In so far as was possible the reorganization corrected this, debts were "sweated" and unified and properties were returned to the shareholders after heavy assessments with large capitalizations, but with direct stock and hood issues, and guarantees wherever possible cut off.

Old Forms of 11

There seems little occasion to change the's opinion as to the matter, and it is cited here only to show how rapidly finan-ciers are drifting back into the old forms of financing. The price paid for Missouri joint bonds of the guaranteeing roads is by but so was the price paid for Burlington, taken over at 200, high, and conservative Wall street also thinks that conservative Wall street also thinks that the price paid to take up what speculators can the $25,000,000 floating debt of the United States Steel Corporation, and for other purposes, is also high.

If such were not the case, Northern Pacific and Great Northern joint 4 per year bonds, with Burlington stock as collateral, the charges on which come ahead of dividends on Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Northern Securities Commany, would dends on Great Northern, Northern Pacini-and Northern, Securities Company, would scarcely be selling at $5%, or United States Steel common at a price that yields 10 per-cent on the present investment. The street is passing judgment on the plan of financing in bonds exchanged for stock at high prices, and thus far the ver-dice is not favorable.

You Look Sick

What makes you look that way? What's the trouble?

If your tongue is coated, if you are bilious, if your head aches, if your food rests heavy on your stomach, and if you are constipated, then the whole trouble is with your liver.

What you need is a good liver pill, a purely vegetable liver pill. You need a box of Ayer's Pills, that's what you need. These pills cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, and sick headache.

"I always keep a box of Ayer's Pills on hand. There is no pill their equal for a liver regulator. Long ago they cured me of liver complaint and chronic constipation."—S. L. Spellman, Columbus, Ohio. "Sc. a box. Ali druggists.
